LIZ OUT LOUD By Liz Bradbury THE CENTER WILL NEED VOLUNTEERS TO HELP MOVE, PAINT, CLEAN, SET-UP

Are you on the Bradbury-Sullivan LGBT Community Center email list? Well you should be, because not only will you hear about all the many events we are presenting (see throughout this paper for everything from Bowling and Comedy events to Trans Educational and Inclusive Congregations presentations) but we'll be making a MAJOR ANNOUNCEMENT ABOUT THE CENTER SOON that you will not want to miss!

Currently, we are building a list of people who will volunteer at the Community Center when it opens. Even before we open, we will need volunteers to help us move our organizational papers, office furniture, supplies, and other stuff from our offices in Allentown and Easton, into the Center. We will also need teams of people to paint, clean, and set up the space. You won't have to have vast painting, cleaning, or interior decorating experience. We'll show you what to do. We just need people who will be able to do this kind of work when the time comes.

We also need volunteers to help with events. This usually includes set-up, ticket taking, meet and greet, handing out information, and clean-up. We need people to do this at off-site events, and we will need people to do this at the Community Center when it opens.

If you can volunteer to help, and especially if you have painting experience and/or a van or a mini van to move stuff, please either sign up on the volunteer list in the Bradbury-Sullivan LGBT Community Center booth at the Pride Festival today, or email me at liz@bradburysullivancenter.org. You can also call me at 610-432-5449.

TRISH'S COLUMN By Patricia Sullivan IF YOU ARE TRANS, GENDER- QUEER OR NON-BINARY - TELL YOUR STORY

The National Center for Transgender Equality (NCTE) has launched a major survey on of all Trans identities, including Trans, Gender-queer and non-binary people. You may complete the survey between August 19 and September 21. The survey covers a broad range of issues including, but not limited to, unemployment, underemployment, housing, health care, HIV/AIDS, disabilities, immigration, sex work, and police interactions.

This is an important opportunity for Trans community members to provide information reflecting your personal Trans life experiences to a national data base that advocates, policymakers, organizations and academics can draw upon to create programs and provide comprehensive services to meet the unique needs of the Trans community.

For this data base to be meaningful it must represent all Trans identities and levels of experiences. To achieve this goal the NCTE is collaborating with organizations nationwide to ensure a large and diverse sample of participants. This data will be compared with like data from the national population as a whole and NCTE plans to do a follow up survey every five years to measure progress over time.

If you are Trans, Genderqueer or non-binary please go to the site listed below and participate in the survey. If you are cisgender (not Trans) share this information to individuals and groups who may be able to get this information to members of the Trans community. Participants must live in the United States, a US Territory or abroad on a US Military base.

To learn more about the survey from the National Center for Transgender Equality or to take the survey go to: USTransSurvey.org.

DO YOU KNOW SOMEONE SEEKING AN INTERNSHIP?

The Bradbury-Sullivan LGBT Community Center has a limited number of one semester or summer internships available for college or high school students seeking to complete volunteer (non-paying) internship requirements or get experience with an LGBT not-for-profit. Hours and time commitment are flexible. Our offices are located in Center City Allentown and Easton. For further information and to fill out an application please see www.bradburysullivancenter.org/internship_opportunities.

MAGAZINE DEBUT THE GAY JOURNAL

The debut issue of The Lehigh Valley's Premiere Gay Journal will make its first appearance at Pride in the Park at Cedar Beach Park in Allentown, Sunday August 23rd noon-6pm. Thousands of copies will be handed out to festival goers. Circulation of the magazine will include the Greater Lehigh Valley, and Philly, New Hope, Lancaster, NYC, New Jersey, Rehoboth, Harrisburg etc. The Gay Journal will be a full size, quarterly-produced infotainment magazine. It will feature an on-going history of the LGBT movement in the Valley by those who made it.

"Also included will be restaurant and bar reviews, previews of music, movies and books and celebrity interviews. It will include shoppe and boutique reviews, ways to improve your diet, your workout, and your home and hearth, along with travel logs and wedding photos," says Publisher Stephen Libby, who adds that the Gay Journal will carry fashion features, drink recipes, happy hour hot spots, and day and weekend trips, and that health alerts and pet care tips will be regular columns.

Which Sentence Are you UNlikely to utter in this Lifetime?

I THINK SCREENING ONE'S CALLS IS IMMORAL.

01. "It's Funny, but I DON'T enjoy wearing CLOTHES I GOT ON SALE AS MUCH AS THE ONES I PAID FULL PRICE FOR."

02. "Crème Brûlée DOESN'T Do it FOR ME ANYMORE. I PREFER SOMETHING LIGHTER FOR DESSERT."

03. "I'VE MANAGED to LOSE those 15 POUNDS I put ON WHEN I Hit 40."

NO, but I CAN MAKE SOME WANT IT WITH CHOCOLATE CHIPS?

SOOZY VIEWS

by Sue Sneringer

JON STEWART

Normally at this time on a Monday night, I am clearing the deck for the next installment of THE DAILY SHOW with JON STEWART. If we weren't watching live we were squirreling away episodes for binge watching, as many as our brains could take before freezing. As Stewart closed out his brilliant career on the Comedy Central show he spoke not of goodbyes but of a pause in the conversation he's had with us for some sixteen plus years. I hope that means he'll be back soon. But underneath the silly play of the final show, with all the many terrific correspondents who've made their bones there under his tutelage, one could sense a man in desperate need of a break. He took his job on the comedy show very seriously. American icon and fellow Jersey boy Bruce Springsteen set Stewart's sail for the next chapter with a rousing finale. It will rank for me as one of the great TV sendoffs of all time.

Forget about his entertainment resume. It is hard for me to imagine a better citizen than this man. We saw the guy on the tube, the clown, the critic, the satirist. His "pal," Bill O'Reilly loves to mock do-gooder celebrities but I wonder if he ever puts his money where it matters. Stewart surely did and does, taking up the cause of sick kids, tortured animals, selfless veterans, cops and firefighters, anyone in need, anyone suffering an injustice, really.

Countless nights, through countless news events I turned to him to help me sort out my thoughts and emotions about the direction this country has been taking for some time now and he's never let me down, saying what I hoped someone on TV would about stuff that matters. Everything from the stolen election of 2000, the attacks of September 11, the Iraq invasion, mass shootings, climate change, sexism, racism and homophobia in America. His best foil for idiots was to let them speak. His best defense of freedom, that word so easily banded about as to nearly lose its meaning, was to dare us to think for ourselves.

Though not bound by a journalistic standard, Stewart set his own. His "fake news" show gave us more content than any 24-hour cycle on CNN. When he pleaded with the CROSSFIRE panel to "stop hurting America" it was real. And, even though the network canned that show, a host of clones has replaced it and none of them give a damn about anything but Roger Ailes' bottom line.

When Murrow left, it was the end of an era. Same for Cronkite, Paar, Carson, and the like. Each had changed the TV landscape and made us the better for it. We have no idea how much we are going to miss Jon Stewart.

RANTS & RAVES BY STEPHEN T. LIBBY PITP 2015 EDITION

In celebration of the new Stonewall movie being released next month I decided to list other milestone moments in entertainment. I have purposely left out the more popular current titles like Empire and OITNB. Most listed can be found on youtube and elsewhere online. This is only a primer to whet your appetite for more.

Movies: The Boys in the Band, The Children's Hour, Making Love, Parting Glances, The Adventures of Priscilla Queen of the Desert, Xanadu, Anything by Jon Waters and anything featuring Divine, Latter Days, The Wizard of Oz, Desert Hearts, Hedwig & the Angry Inch, anything with Bette Davis, Joan Crawford, Billy's Hollywood Screen Kiss, Trick, In & Out, La Cage au Folles...

TV: Charles Neslon Reilly on Match Game, Paul Lynde on Hollywood Squares/Bewitched, Soap, Melrose Place, Kristy MacNichol on Family, The Golden Girls, Queer as Folk (UK & US versions), The Graham Norton Show, Themes from The Patty Duke, That Girl, and Mary Tyler Moore Shows, Will & Grace, The Band Played On, The Ambiguously Gay Duo...

Music: Almost anything by Diana Ross, Mariah Carey, Bette Midler, Ella Fitzgerald, Culture Club, Cher, Judy Garland, David Bowie, Wham!, Pet Shop Boys, Erasure, Grace Jones, Madonna, Melissa Etheridge, k.d.lang, the Physical music video by Olivia Newton-John. Anything by Cole Porter, Bessie Smith, George Michael...

Books: Anything by Keith Haring, Andy Warhol, Bruce Weber, coffee table books that feature boobs (or not) and penis, Lost Language of Cranes, The Well of Loneliness, Anything by Gordon Merrick, Theatre: Avenue Q, Gypsy, Anything by Rogers & Hammerstein, The Normal Heart, Love! Valour! Compassion!, Angels in America, Rent, Chicago, Cabaret and...hell, any musical ever made!

Enjoy discovering these and other forgotten but classic titles!

PARENTS AND PRIDE

As members of the LGBT community, Pride is an important aspect of our lives. We are proud of who we are, what we have accomplished so far, and the goals that we have for our community.

Although we have many different roles in the community, the pride we have in our diversity is something we share and it strengthens our support of each other.

Young and single gay men and lesbians demonstrate their individual pride and let the world know they are not ashamed of who they are. Gay and lesbian couples hold hands in public, showing the world their love for each other and the strength of their relationships. Gay men and lesbians are getting married, having children, adopting children, and raising their children in a world that is going to have to accept them for who they are. In order to do that we are proud of our families and proud of our children.

As our children excel in academics, arts, and athletics we show our pride for them by applauding for them together at sporting events, concerts, and spelling bees. If they are not excelling that way we show our pride for them by taking them to these events and applauding with them for their friends. Our greatest sense of pride is in being parents. We are proud of our children and we are proud of the role we play in their lives. We are proud to be LGBT parents and feel quite special as such.

One reason we feel so special is that we know we pass on a very positive attribute to our children. That attribute is the acceptance of diversity. Our children will be the ones who prevent, rather than encourage bullying. Our children will be the ones who do not have a problem using the correct pronoun when referring to a transgender person. Our children will be the ones that will have minimal problems accepting their own sexuality.

As LGBT parents we are proud of who we are, of what we are doing, and of what our children will become.

THE BLIND TRUTH BY KATHLEEN PRIME ACCESSIBILITY IS MORE THAN RAMPS

When I first heard about the Valley Gay Press I had recently returned to the Lehigh Valley from Thailand. I was eager to read the only local LGBT paper in the area to learn what's happening in my new community. But I've been thwarted at every turn. Even now that I write a column for the Valley Gay Press and I get a free copy of each issue sent to my home (a perquisite that is sent to both donors and columnists) I still haven't had the chance to read it. The reason is pretty simple, I'm blind, so I can't read a hard copy of the paper.

This inaccessibility is compounded because there is no on-line text version of the Valley Gay Press. Text on-line can be read by a blind person in two ways - special laptops can convert rows of text into braille, so that blind people can read emails and other linear text. Also, text can be selected and converted to speech, so that blind people can hear the written text. But that doesn't work when the text is in a graphic, and since the Valley Gay Press is created in the graphics program Illustrator, the text to speech option doesn't work.

I'm working with Liz Bradbury to make the VGP accessible to more people. Accessibility is an important issue for the LGBT community. If you'd like to work with me and volunteer to help convert older VGP issues to readable speak-text for posting on the bradburysullivancenter.org website, and you have a Mac computer that has the Illustrator program on it, please contact Liz at liz@bradburysullivancenter.org to help us with this project.

ADRIAN SHANKER COMMENTARY INCLUSIVE CONGREGATIONS A CONFERENCE FOR CLERGY

We're doing something unique in December. Bradbury-Sullivan LGBT Community Center is hosting a conference for clergy. The "Lehigh Valley Inclusive Congregations Clergy Summit" will be held on December 2, 2015 at Congregation Keneseth Israel in West Allentown.

A grant from E. Rhodes and Leona B. Carpenter Foundation enabled Bradbury-Sullivan LGBT Community Center to organize and host the conference, which will feature keynote speaker, Alex McNeill, Executive Director of More Light Presbyterians.

Workshop topics at the conference will include "using ritual to celebrate LGBT experiences," "Spiritual violence and the LGBT Community," "Pastoral care for LGBT congregants," and "LGBT cultural competency for clergy." There will also be a meet-up for LGBT clergy from the region.

This conference represents a unique opportunity to bring clergy from a variety of faith traditions together to learn from each other about the best strategies to ensure that their congregations are LGBT-inclusive.

Registration for the one-day clergy conference is $35/person to advance registration is required. More information and registration is available at www.bradburysullivancenter.org/clergy_conference. If you are a member of a faith community, please encourage your clergy members to attend!

Adrian Shanker is the Founding Director of the Bradbury-Sullivan LGBT Center and is the former President of the Board of Equality Pennsylvania - the largest LGBT Legislative Advocacy Organization in PA.

RECENT QUESTIONS ASKED, CALLED, OR EMAILED TO THE BRADBURY-SULLIVAN CENTER...
WTA WITH THE PHOTO PROJECT?

Dear Readers, Now that full Marriage Equality is the law of the land, we've decided to end the Same-sex Couples Photo Project. More than 1800 people in same-sex couples were photographed from 2006 to 2015 for the project, that put a face on the fight for marriage equality, and helped to educate the mainstream community on LGBT civil rights. The Project was exhibited in nearly 100 venues in hard copy and in the projected formats. The great news is that the Bradbury-Sullivan LGBT Community Center will produce a book chronicling the Project and our local fight for marriage equality. Project creator, photographer, and writer Liz Bradbury is currently working on production with help from Karen Deysher on book design. All photos that are currently in the Project will be featured in the book. Publication date is set for January 2016.

LGBT FILM SERIES

in partnership with ArtsQuest, the Bradbury-Sullivan LGBT Community Center has co-created and co-sponsored an LGBT film series each year since 2010. The film series presents a diverse array of mostly-new, mostly-independent LGBT films, including foreign films, art house and documentary films. Our partnership with ArtsQuest allows this series to occur annually and with stability. The ticket price covers ArtsQuest's hosting of the series at SteelStacks and is not a fundraiser for our organization.

"A LITTLE BIT OF HEALING"

by Phil Healing

Conversion and on the fringe

Hi my dear Lehigh Valley friends!

Great news from across the pond. Kindall and I are now legally married. We converted our civil partnership (which the US doesn't recognize) into marriage (which the US does recognise) on 17th July. Here in the UK, they 'back date' the marriage to the date of the civil partnership registration, so as of July 17th, we have now apparently been married for over 9 years. The truth is we've been together for 23 years but that's just a minor detail!

Anyway the good news is, finally, that I can apply for a green card. I am in the process of getting together all the required documentation and we'll see how it goes. We still haven't really made a decision about moving back as it is a really tough one. We now, of course, want the best of both places. I don't miss things about the US such as cops everywhere behaving like Nazis; the location of our house on the busiest corner of the city; etc. My job here is the best job I have ever had. I'm responsible for upgrading an entire factory - ripping out obsolete control systems from the 80's and replacing it with shiny, hyper hip new stuff with blisteringly brilliant programs written by yours truly. I'm one of the management team and it's a wonderfully supportive and enthusiastic environment in which to work. I might struggle to get something this rewarding but who knows. But there are plenty of things I miss quite a lot, of course. Our friends are right up there. We may just come over for a vacation, stay for a week and see how we feel. And let's not count our green card chickens.

We're off to the Edinburgh Fringe Festival on Friday for 16 nights. It's the largest performing arts festival in the world with 3000 different productions over the month of August. I'm looking forward to this immensely. We have to put little Blanche in a kennel, which we don't love, but she's remarkably resilient and as sweet and passive as ever.

Our own performing arts group in Lincoln, LAODS, of which we're both on the board, has just passed a vote to mount Spamalot in June of next year as our summer musical. We're all psyched about it. It replaces 'Hello Dolly' (ugh). A total result!

So, lots to think about. Happy Pride!
